

The History of Cupcakes

- A Will you help me study for history?
- B I don't like history.
- A Really? I think it's so interesting.
- B Not me. I think it's boring. Besides, I'm hungry. I want to go to lunch.
- A But history has so many good stories.
- B I don't think they're so good. Those old stories put me to sleep.
- A They're great stories! I read about George Washington and Alexander Hamilton and Benjamin Franklin and all the other founding fathers.
- B I wish the founding fathers found a way to be less boring.
- A You're not being fair. You're not even giving history a chance.
- B There's no future in history.
- A C'mon. Help me study. Just for an hour.
- B But I'm hungry! Hmmm ... maybe if I have dessert first. And then lunch. Gotta be some cake or pie or ice cream around here someplace ...
- A I think every kid should learn world history.
- B Boring! The most boring subject!
- A And the history of their own country too.
- B You know what kind of history I wanna learn?

- A What?
- B The history of cupcakes!
- A I think cupcakes are boring.
- B Not the way my mom makes them! She puts the "icious" in "delicious."
