EXT. IN FRONT OF THE SCHOOL

LIBBY AND JANE ARE LEAVING SCHOOL. LIBBY IS SO HAPPY THAT SHE'S FLOATING ON AIR.

JANE
(Very upset) Greg asked you out?

LIBBY
Yep!

JANE
Just like that?

LIBBY
Just like that. He looked at me with those beautiful blue eyes and...

JANE
(Getting more upset) And what?

LIBBY
...he asked me out!

JANE
But I thought he liked me.

LIBBY
I thought he did, too.

JANE
He's always smiling at me, telling me how beautiful I look.
And he's always standing by my locker when I come out of gym.

LIBBY
Well that's the problem.

JANE
What is?

LIBBY
He saw you after gym. Greg hates sweat.

JANE Sweat?

Sensational Comedic Scenes

LIBBY

Hates it. Before he asked me out, you know what he said?
"Libby the best thing about you is, you don't sweat."

JANE

That's stupid. I've seen him after gym and he's covered with sweat.

LIBBY

I know, isn't he cute? But he's a boy. Boys sweat.

JANE

Well, so do girls.

LIBBY

Maybe but not girls that Greg wants to go out with. Oh, but that's not the only reason he likes me better than you.
Greg told me he hates how you make good grades in math.

JANE

What's wrong with good grades?

LIBBY

Greg says you're a show off. He says everyone knows boys are smarter than girls. Especially in math. And so you, by making better grades than him, are just showing off.

JANE

That's the stupidest thing I've ever heard.

LIBBY

He told me you would say that.

JANE

He did?

LIBBY

Greg said you always think everybody's ideas are stupid.
Except for yours of course.

JANE

(Getting really mad) I do not!

LIBBY

Hey, don't get mad at me! Greg said it.

JANE

Well, Greg is stupid! Stupid! Stupid! I can't believe I ever liked such a stupid person. Did he say anything else about me?

LIBBY

Oh, yeah. Tons of stuff. (Pulling a note out of her pocket)
He wrote it all down in this note.

JANE

(Grabbing the note) Give me that! (Reading) "Dear Libby, Please tell your sister that I like her and want her to go to the prom with me. I am too shy to ask her myself. Every time I get close to her, I get all goofy. She is so smart and pretty. Why can't all girls be as great as Jane? Thank you, Greg."

LIBBY

(Laughing) Isn't he so stupid?
